

I'm concerned that the push for expanded service of LPFM stations will endanger the existence of the the national broadcast I listen to exclusively (K-LOVE, locally 106.7). K-LOVE's family friendly programming and encouraging message/music are rare on today's radio scene. I'm not alone when I say that K-LOVE and other national and regional services like it need to be protected. K-LOVE provides an invaluable service through it's type of wholesome programming, and has a significant number of listeners across the nation. Please take these comments under serious consideration. Thank you.
